

Lifting the Local Economy

Titan Partners' proposed fuel terminal represents a long-term investment in Dickson County's economic future. We have some exciting news we want to share about the positive impact our facility will have on your community's economy.

In an effort to provide more factual information about our project to Dickson County residents and businesses, we recently partnered with Younger Associates, a highly regarded Tennessee-based firm specializing in economic development, and asked them to conduct an independent economic impact analysis of our project.

We are proud to let you know Younger Associates concluded the Titan Partners fuel terminal will generate significant long-term tax revenue to local government, and create many new construction and other jobs for residents in the middle Tennessee region.

$5.4+
Million

Local tax revenue directly and indirectly generated by the terminal in the first decade of operation

Local jobs directly and indirectly supported from the terminal's construction and initial operation

500+

“This capital-intensive investment will bring a number of impactful benefits to the local economy, including direct and supply chain-related job creation, while generating meaningful local and state tax revenue. Not only will the project have a significant upfront economic impact during the build and construction phase, but once operational, the terminal will create in excess of $13 million in economic benefits each year for Dickson County.”

– Lana Suite, Certified Municipal Finance Officer (CMFO) and Director of Research at Younger Associates

$22+
Million

Wages paid to local workers and contractors during construction and terminal operation

One-time economic impact from construction and road improvements

$95+
Million